THE WILD WEST SHOW COMING

The 101 Ranch Real Wild West Show is coming to Lethbridge on Friday, June 28th, and it will give the people of this vicinity an opportunity of seeing the grandest western exhibition ever conceived. From the standpoint of both magnitude and merit this western aggregation is in a class by itself. Three long trains of double length cars are required to convey it into the country, and nearly 1,000 men, women and horses participate in the performances. In every city where this stupendous show has been seen this year, the press and its thousands of patrons have been unanimous in proclaiming it to be the most wonderful exhibition of modern times. The show comes direct from the great 101 Ranch at Bliss, Oklahoma, which is the largest ranch in the world, and from it the show derives its name. Miller Brothers, who are the owners of the ranch, are joint owners with Edward Arlington in the show. Unlike other so-called wild west shows, the 101 Ranch does not tolerate anything that is not purely western. There is nothing from any other section of the universe around it. It is of the West and purely western.

On the morning of the day of the exhibition, a grand, free street parade will be given, which is over a mile in length and will include many interesting features, including Indians of every tribe not yet extinct. This parade should be seen by all, whether the performances are attended or not. Two performances will be given in Lethbridge. The afternoon performance begins at 2 o'clock and the evening performance is at 8 o'clock. The doors to the Indian Village and band concert will open one hour in advance of each performance. Patrons may feel safe with this show, as no gambling or catch-penny devices are tolerated either on the grounds or around them. The show carries its own corps of experienced detectives, and knowing this, the dishonestly inclined give it a wide berth. One ticket is all that is required to visit every department of the big show. Comfortable seats with back and foot rest are provided for 10,000 people.

CARDSTON CHORAL TO THE FRONT

Lethbridge, Alta., June 22.—Cardston is out for the big trophies at the International Dry-Farmed Products' Exposition next October, and has adopted a novel plan to secure an unusually large exhibit. Nearly 100 farmers in the district have been allotted seed and assigned special grains, grasses or vegetables to grow, and each is cultivating two square rods, there being no two of the same variety in the district.

Cardston will also furnish the vocal music at the big Congress, and the two voices in the famous Cardston Choral Society are in training for their three days' work with standard songs, under the direction of Director S. S. Newton.

The Board of Control, in accepting the proffer of the Choir, unanimously voted to extend transportation courtesies and to arrange for the Choir opening the Congress and possibly giving a special evening of choral entertainment.

At the meeting of the Board of Control last Thursday, on motion of Mr. E. A. Cunningham, seconded by Mr. H. J. Goode, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, The Cardston Agricultural Society, Board of Trade and Choral Society have, through the director of said choral society, offered the free services of the chorus of one hundred voices for concert work or special numbers during the Dry-Farming Congress, October 21-26 inclusive:

"Be it resolved, That this executive body hereby express its thanks to Mr. S. S. Newton, Director of the Choral Society, and to the Cardston Agricultural Society and Board of Trade, for the liberal offer, and realizing that this will be a most interesting and profitable entertainment feature for the delegates of the Congress, and in accepting the same, we hereby express our appreciation of the kindly and helpful spirit of co-operation manifested by the people of Cardston district in this connection.

"The secretary was authorized to forward this resolution to the newspapers of Southern Alberta and request those papers to publish the same."

Messrs. C. W. Card and Sons have purchased the blacksmithing and horse shoeing business from Mr. E. C. Rensvon this week. This is the fifth time, since its erection about five years ago, that the business has changed hands, and it is likely that more improvements will be made before long.

DOMINION DAY CELEBRATION TO BE GRAND SUCCESS

Although a little late in their work, the several committees which were elected at the mass meeting for the Dominion Day celebration are now very busy with the work allotted to them by the general committee, and all indications point to a grand celebration on July 1st. The program committee have selected numbers for a good, rousing program, which will be rendered at the Opera House on Monday morning commencing at ten o'clock. This program is to be seen in another article. The advertising committee have gotten half sheet posters and programs out and are doing all in their power to advertise the celebration. The several other committees are also working hard doing their share of the work, while Town Supervisor Harris is making great improvements at the park. Mr. Chas. Kinsey, who has the horse races in charge, is working like a Trojan. All who know Mr. Kinsey will agree with us when we say that the best horseman in Southern Alberta has the races in charge, and we know that they will be the best races ever seen in Southern Alberta. The baseball boys are practicing hard, and when they clash with Warner on July 1st, there will be "something doing" on the baseball diamond.

The Raymond Military Band will be on the grounds and will keep things moving with high strains from their well practiced instruments.

Get busy, everybody, and let's make this celebration the best ever held in Southern Alberta.

Instinct and Reason Both Point to "Fit-rite"

MEN are wont to scoff at woman's judgment in the matter of clothes. But is there really foundation for this attitude? Men who have put their wives and sisters to the test have found the contrary. Next time you buy a suit, take her along. You'll find her woman's instinct will guide you unerringly to the right clothes shop—chances are she'll set the seal of her approval upon a "Fit-rite" suit. Having once worn a "Fit-rite" garment, reason will dictate continued patronage of this high-grade line.

"H, oh, Mr. Bowser! didn't kick open the gate nor throw the hat on the floor instead of banging it on a peg—not this time.

He opened the gate as tenderly as he handled dynamite—almost waited to knock at the door—and when he had entered the hall he carried a fathery wisp on his face.

No glaring at the cat as she came forward, no turning up his nose at the new and the old waiter at the door, no declaring the coffee to be the worst—just sat down before a man with a plate and a bowl of beef stein.

Just good, just good, just also and sweet and lovely. Just so lovely that Mrs. Bowser wondered if the honeymoon was to come back after all the long years.

In High Good Humor. At times when the most hated Mr. Bowser smiled blandly, at other times he sneered, he also sneered at the new and the old waiter at the door, no declaring the coffee to be the worst—just sat down before a man with a plate and a bowl of beef stein.

profit on a $25 plate to $450. Suppose Mrs. Bowser, that we didn't for such purposes. Suppose we consid-ed the outfit right out of the budget—suppose I could furnish $10 pimes at a cost price of $250 to $300.

"But how can it be possible?"
"His, ha, ha! Where do the cattails come from, I see?"
"You would make them out of straw."

"With the use of various dyes." The secret, that's the idea. The farmer has three acres of swamp grown up to cattails, and I intend for $20 a year. He went away grinning, but he'll sing a different tune when I begin to hand him my $100,000. Going up there tomorrow to look at gathering stock. What do you think?"

"Mrs. B.'s Good Thing."
"It's wonderful, but I must tell you that I've got something more than $100,000 in it, but that will help some."

"But I don't like the idea of your making investments without consulting me on my face."

"Oh, but I don't have to invest a dollar. The idea came to me as I did the cattails, and I'm sure you could do it."

"Well, what is it?"
"You—you won't give it away?"
"No, I won't give it away."

"Well, how many oranges does the world consume every year?"
"By billions, Mr. Bowser. What becomes of at least two-thirds of the peel, I think."

"Thrown aside."
"That's it. There you are. Suppose all the peel of the world were used to make shoes, how many shoes could one man have had for 50 cents a dozen for himself?"

"By a Chemical Process."
"And then what?"
"By a chemical process, turn it into leather. It's the same thing as leather —the same leather you see in most of the shoes advertised."

"But what chemicals would do it?" asked Mr. Bowser after sitting for a moment as if stunned.

"I'm still experimenting on that, but I think that esom salts and chloride of lime will do the trick. I figure it can make the leather for $25 an acre and sell it for a thousand. After the first year I may sell out to the leather trust. They are in the market for a good thing. I should ask you to come in with me, but you'll be busy with your cattle."

"Woman, what—what is this?"
"I'm serious as he is about it."
"And I think I might convert lemon peels into alligator skins," she went on. "I don't think but that I could picked up at Coney Island in a day if I don't buy."

"I don't understand, by thunder, if I should buy."

He catches the Point.
"And you don't smile or Mrs. Bowser's mouth, and when she was forced to laugh she was forced to laugh. Invited and humiliated in my own house. If the living thing out this is too much—too much!"

"But, these cattails. These cattails plant," Mrs. Bowser, I leave the house, I leave it over to enter it again. I leave it, breathing woman can make me a man."

"But you know—"
"You know, too late!"
"I have long wished to be a million aire."

"I know."
"When the day has arrived at last."
"I'm so glad!"

"I knew you would be. Mrs. Bowser, you have never considered me a briny man, have you?"
"Why, you are not a great estate man."

Some Confessions.
"Just an average man that goes along his rounds. I know enough to jump over the fence when I hear earth quake coming, but not enough to be secretary of state. That's about the way you stand up, I take it."

"I don't blame you, for I haven't seemed to amount to much heretofore but, now, however."

"Yes, what?"
"Right here in my head—I'm brain pain. I'm not to working at last about $100,000."

"You don't tell me?"
"Wondered, are you? Found a new business. Not a great estate man, but as Chummy Dwyer, but he built in a little $100,000 in a few years. I don't just as easy as rolling off a log, and get all the great minds of the world to stand by it. I've got an answer."

"You antonoid me, Mr. Bowser?"
"I thought I should. Mrs. Bowser, you were here and brought up in the country."

"Yes."
"You have seen thousands of cat-tails growing in swamps?"

"Yes."
"They grow on long stalks, and at the end there is something that looks like a banana. It's called a peltate."
"I know. I have gathered hundreds of them."

The Great Idea.
"Well, a farmer brought one into the office today. The instant my eyes lighted on it I got an idea—the idea—the million dollar idea."

"To sell them to school children for penny pennies," said Mrs. Bowser.
Mr. Bowser smiled at her indolgent and said:
"What does a fine ostrich plate cost?"

"Why, you can go as high as $20."
"I want to shoot one of them down from?"
"Afraid I believe."
"Blame you are, and the demand is always very ahead of the supply. The

THREPPENNY DAY.

A Curious Old Custom That is Observed at Elton College.

On "threppenny day," a new threepenny piece is presented to each of the pupils in the famous Elton college in England. The custom was founded nearly 400 years ago by Roger Lupton, who was provost of the college from 1510 to 1512. It is now observed by the fellows for an annual distribution of the money on the anniversary of his death.

The fellows, headmaster and Lupton's chaplain is 4d. the other chaplains and other dignitaries receive six pence and the scholars and chorists a penny each.

The scholars still get this penny in the threppenny pieces distributed to them on Feb. 27, the other twopence being from the gift of Provost Hood, Lupton's successor as provost. There was a tradition at Elton, which has been disproved, but which subsists to the present day, that half a shilling was given to each scholar on the day that the college ended their obligation by giving the value of half a shilling in twopence and some time in the middle of the last century a boy named Charles Henry Bonwell, who had been a scholar, was sent to Bethyl, one of the fellows, said:
"Bethyl, I think you, sir, I want my half shilling."

"Bethyl went into an awful rage," said the Montagu Williams, who has written the story, and exclaimed, "I mention this matter to Dr. Hawtrey and he says that the custom is a unfortunate youth was—New York

THE COST OF LIVING.
You Can Easily Keep It Down If You Choose To Try This Plan.

In these days of high prices and bills of families are eagerly seeking for ways of keeping down their expenses. As containing such a suggestion as the following story of a German and—said the narrator's realm, told to Hester Donaldson Jenkins "Boston Courier."

It is said there was once a man who so dearly loved his evening meal that he would not eat anything else. When nothing but plan what it should be. At the thought of the vials his mouth would water and his eyes would the food that was coming.

One day it occurred to him that he could enjoy himself from the long anticipation than from the brief realization, and then the thought came to him. "Why not have the anticipation without spending the money that the realization would cost?" So he tried the plan.

"I shall have kibobs and five plant toots," he would murmur and remark to his wife, "and after that wire cake and furniture."

"Sir," he would look his lips to happy anticipation while he worked, and when night came he would eat a simple meal of olives and bread and remark:
"This is if I had eaten."

The plan worked so well that to the course of years he saved enough to build a mosque, which he called "The 'Is-If-I-Had Eaten Mosque'."

School Discipline.
The young teacher remember that for every teacher that fails on account of his discipline is the number who fails on account of overprotection. Some teachers assume the same attitude as the policeman and force gatherers, driving on the street corner and ordered them to move on, as there was an ordinary case of a crowd gathering on the streets. One man remonstrated, saying that two did not make a crowd.
"One makes a crowd," the policeman answered the policeman. A teacher who assumes that whatever he says is law, and that he is the law, is sure to be making a mistake. When the pupils have a definite aim to do and the teacher has a definite aim to do and there will be no time or occasion to "maintain order." It will maintain itself—Missouri School Journal.

Original of the Postmark.
Great Britain, it is said, can without fear of contradiction claim the honor of having originated the postmark.
The first one, which was used in London as long ago as 1593, was the first of a series of postmarks of a small circle divided into two parts. In the top portion were two letters indicating the day of the month, and in the bottom portion were two letters indicating the month. No endeavor was made to devise a mark to denote the year, and it was not until the year 1840 that the year was added to the postmark, and the mark is impressed that it is possible to find the date of its use. The first known was a letter written in 1840—London Telegraph.

Looking to the Future.
"I guess I'll make a future of Josh," said the Cornishman.
"But your wife wants him to be a physician."

"Yes, but I want to be a professional man, and we'd want to show our confidence in him. And I think it would be a good idea to take Josh's law his medicine—Washington Star.

KOREANS ARE GLUTTONS.

Always Ready to Eat and Always Grave Themselves When They Can.

The Koreans appear to be the greatest eaters in the world. To this the Japanese, French, English, Dutch and Chinese all bear witness. All reports concerning the Korean crudely and food seem to agree. In this respect there is not the least difference between the rich and the poor, the noble and the plebeian. To eat much is an honorable and a meritorious deed.
If it would seem, consists not in the quality as in the quantity of the food consumed. Little conversation occurs during the Korean meal, for each sentence might lose a mouthful.

A Korean is always ready to eat. He attacks whatever he meets with and rarely cries "Enough!" Even between meals he will help himself to anything edible that is offered.

The ordinary portion of a laborer is a sort of rice, which when cooked makes a good bulk. This, however, is no serious hindrance to his devouring double or treble the quantity when he can get it. Eating matches the work of a soldier, and it is thought that a man who could eat a whole hog and the beef is served up a heaping bowl of the steaming mess does not think any more of the matter. Fruit such as peaches or small melons, are served it is said that they are devoured without chewing. Twenty or thirty peaches are deemed an ordinary allowance per person and rapidly disappear.

Such portions in food are not uncommon, and for one feast there may be several. The Koreans are neither fastidious in their eating nor pampering in their cooking. Nothing is so common as to see a man who to the mill in their mouths—New York

A FUNNY SULTAN.
He Liked to Play Practical Jokes Upon His Invited Guests.

We all like our little joke, and es-

A Bad Stomach.

Mrs. S. Keast, of Clarksburg, Ont., says: "A bad stomach trouble that had bothered me for years, baffled and puzzled skilled physicians, was nicely relieved by Mi-o-na. My food would not digest, but fermented in my stomach, forming a gas that gave me untold suffering and pain and also made me weak, nervous, irritable and unable to rest. Since using Mi-o-na I can go to bed at night and sleep and wake up in the morning refreshed. I cannot speak too highly of Mi-o-na."

The dyspeptic, nervous or otherwise, who does not give it a trial is losing an opportunity to regain health. For Mi-o-na Tablets are guaranteed to cure dyspepsia and all stomach disturbances, such as vomiting of pregnancy, sea or car sickness and the stomach sickness after excessive indulgence.
